Marissa has extensive experience in all aspects of complex commercial litigation in state and federal courts across the country, ranging from the skilled examination of witnesses to the preparation of persuasive, well-reasoned appellate briefs, including, most recently, in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Marissa is particularly knowledgeable about electronic discovery (eDiscovery), a critical and challenging aspect of any complex commercial litigation. She also has substantial experience in bankruptcy-related litigation, combining her well-honed litigation skills with her understanding of the bankruptcy process to maximize recoveries for her clients. More generally, but no less important, Marissa is a superlative team leader who brings essential management skills to bear on every project in which she is involved.

Before co-founding Glenn Agre Bergman & Fuentes, Marissa was a partner of Kasowitz Benson Torres and an associate of Latham & Watkins.
